Sophie Birch & Rachel Youn: Figures of Speech @ Alice Amati

Sophie Birch's abstract paintings and Rachel Youn's kinetic sculptures that repurpose mechanisms such as those from a massage chair may feel like they have little in common. However, both are united by the sense of touch or should that be out of touch? Birch's paintings have a skin-like look, and Youn's mechanisms are meant to mimic fingers and move flowers that are also not real. Until 12th April.
