5 BRAND NEW LONDON GALLERIES TO CHECK OUT THIS SPRING

This gallery opens on Warren Street on 1st June 2023, with a group show featuring four international painters, Danielle Fretwell, Dion Rosina, Ugo Sébastião and Ben Zawalich, entitled 'Infinite Loop' and running till 8 July 2023. In the show, the artists aim to create a dialogue with the past and encourage a slow mode of looking in contrast with the haste with which we tend to consume digital images.

Director Alice Amati promises to support early-career artists, providing what will often be their first solo exhibitions. Having worked at several London galleries, including as a Director of Workplace and Sales Assistant at David Zwirner, Alice 'decided it was the right time to bring my own vision to life. I have been inspired by a new generation of female gallerists that are bringing something exciting and new to the scene in London and internationally, and I look forward to working alongside them and contributing to the conversation.'
